

Conference on Improving the Quality & Affordability of Healthcare Through Co-Production of Healthcare Services

May 23–24, 2017 Kingsgate Marriott | Cincinnati, Ohio

The James M. Anderson Center for Health Systems Excellence, along with the Academy for Healthcare Improvement community invites researchers, clinicians, patients/families and others working at the front lines of improving health to explore the science of partnering with patients, both adults and children, to improve health and healthcare.

Keynote Speakers

Tiffany Christensen

Christensen is a life-long patient, professional patient advocate, author, & nationally recognized public speaker. “Bridging Patient and Provider Experiences: A Strategy to Improve Health and Healthcare”

David Sloan Wilson

Wilson is a SUNY Distinguished Professor of Biology and Anthropology at Binghamton University, author, world renowned scientist and evolutionary biologist, and co-founder and president of the Evolution Institute. “Becoming Wise Managers of Evolutionary Processes to Accomplish Positive Change: Applications to the Science of Healthcare Co-Production”

Panel Discussions

- What is Co-Production? Exploring the Concept and Sharing Real-World Experiences
- Co-Producing Research: Practical Examples of the Benefits and Challenges of Working Together

Methods Workshops include:

- Patient-Reported Outcome Measures: Learning & Acting on What Matters to Patients and Families
- Shared Decision-Making & Goal Setting as a Catalyst for Co-Producing Care
- Virtual & Augmented Reality: From Engagement to Co-production
- Co-producing Research Together: From Design to Dissemination
- Measuring Co-Production: What Tools Might We Use to Measure How Well We Are Co-Producing Healthcare Services?
- Outside Clinic Walls: Co-Producing Improved Health Outcomes with Community Partners
- Building Vibrant & Sustainable Infrastructure to Support Co-Production

Original science abstract presentations. Innovative ideas to revolutionize care presented and awarded in style of ABC TV's Shark Tank.

See website for available continuing credit | Supported by conference grant R13 HS024249-01 from the Agency for Healthcare Research & Quality

Register at www.cincinnatichildrens.org/co-production or email co-production@cchmc.org for more info.